

Abstract of the Disclosure

A child seat includes a seat body having a seat portion, a backrest, and left and right side guards, an airbag provided adjacent to the seat body for receiving the child upon inflation thereof, and an inflating device communicating with the airbag for inflating the airbag. When the inflating device is actuated, the airbag is inflated to receive the child for protection.